Challenge

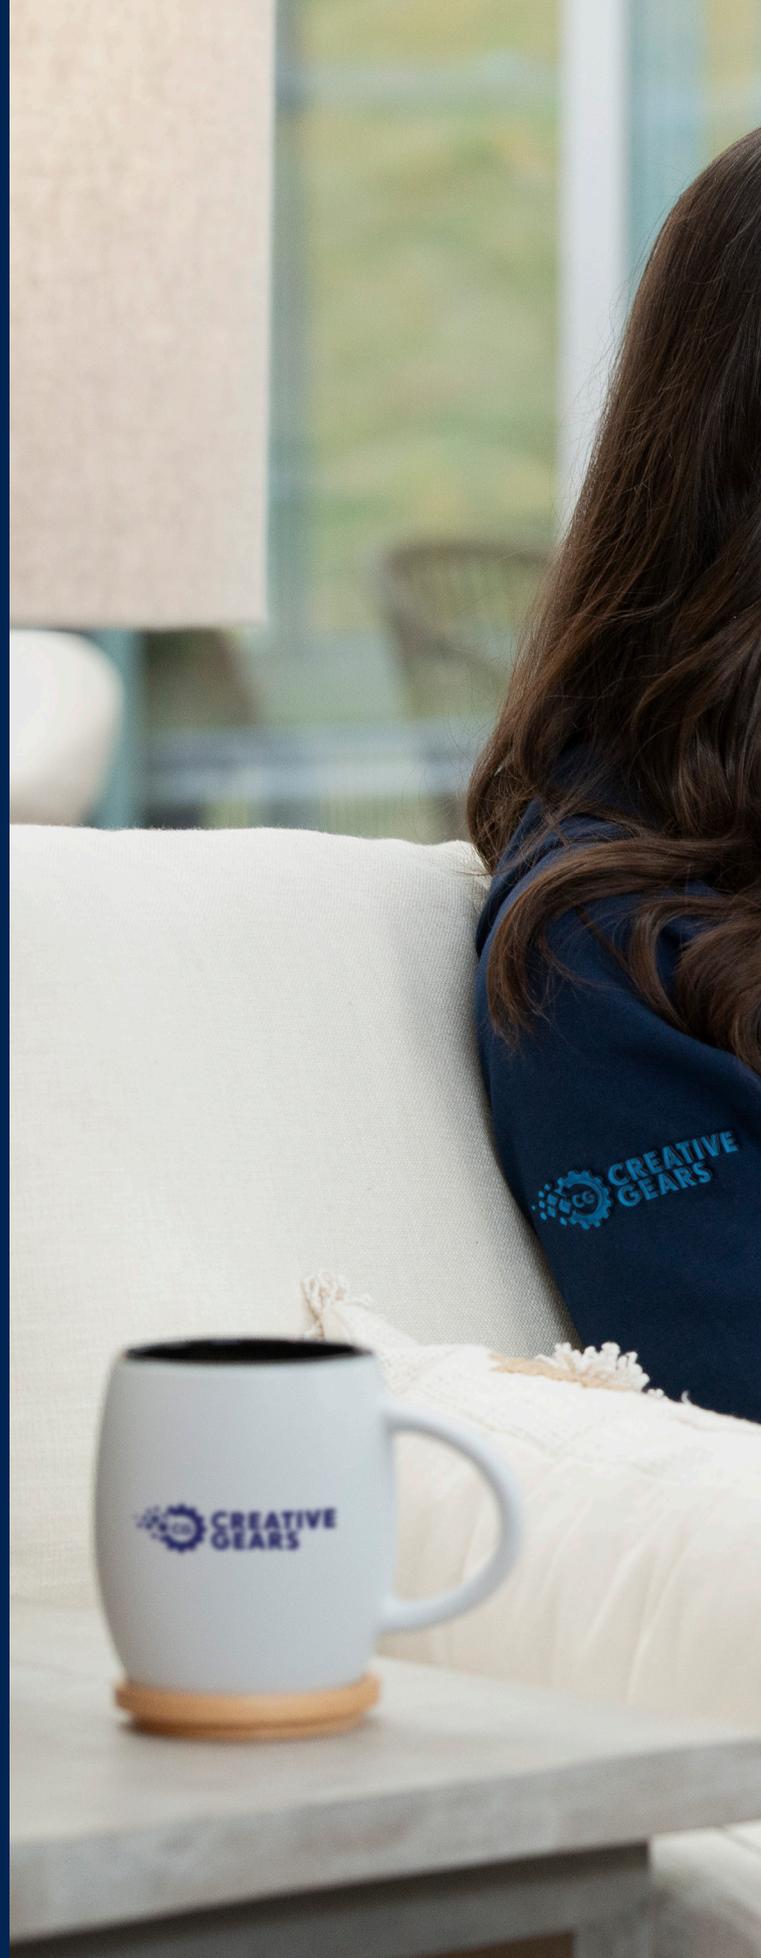

Lots of people are working from home, which can make it hard to maintain company culture and keep everyone feeling like part of a team.

Opportunity

Employee gifts are a great way to reinforce team spirit and, of course, let people know they're appreciated. Bonus: A Perfectly Packaged message card will make it all feel even more personal.

A 'Perfect' Idea

Send gifts for virtual team-building events – or even if the event's not virtual, you can still drop ship them beforehand. It's always fun having a gift arrive at your doorstep.

Employee Appreciation

Virtual Events

Challenge

Conferences, tradeshows and sales meetings are just some of the events moving online, creating a few new challenges:

1. Reinforcing the event's brand
2. Making the event feel special
3. Delivering gifts to the people participating

Opportunity

Create some buzz and get everyone excited by delivering event swag in advance with drop shipments.

A 'Perfect' Idea

For multi-day virtual events, include a gift that represents each day's theme or agenda. And remember, people love posting pics of cool swag - give them a #hashtag to create more buzz.

Challenge

For customers and clients who continue to operate remotely, delivering gifts can be tricky.

Opportunity

It's always important to let customers know they're appreciated – even more so when times are tough. Drop shipments are an easy solution, and the nicer packaging will make the gift experience even better.

A 'Perfect' Idea

Wrapped up a big project? Celebrate with a Perfectly Packaged gift to the team that made it happen – maybe even with a virtual happy hour and a toast. Cheers!
